Summer Clinical Research Opportunity in Breast Oncology
Dr. Andrea Silber, Associate Clinical Professor of Medicine, studies health disparities in cancer clinical trials. She is interested in working with an undergraduate student over the summer on a survey study being conducted at Smilow Cancer Hospital. This is a wonderful opportunity to gain clinical research experience and interact with patients. The student's primary role would be recruiting patients for the study. However, the student could be involved with other aspects of the project as well, including data analysis and writing up findings if they wish. Dr. Silber asks that the student commit to at least 3-5 hours per week of research time. It is an unpaid position, but she believes that this project would be a great opportunity for a student to grow as a researcher and learn more about oncology.
